

BENEFACT TRUST

Annual Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement - Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the “Act”)

Benefact Trust Limited (the “Trust”) is committed to preventing acts of modern slavery and human trafficking from occurring within both its business and supply chains. It expects those same high standards to be observed by its suppliers and its beneficiaries to whom the Act applies.

Organisation Structure

The Trust is an independent charity registered with, and regulated by, the Charity Commission. Its objectives are to promote the Christian faith and to provide funds for other charitable purposes. The Trust’s vision and mission is to be one of the UK’s most impactful Christian grant-making charities, equipping and empowering Christian organisations to have a positive and transformative impact on lives and communities. The Trust is therefore committed to ensuring that the highest standards of governance, behaviours and ethical practices are applied in conducting the charity’s affairs.

The Trust owns the corporate group of companies known as the Benefact Group (“BG”) and derives its income predominantly from its main trading subsidiary, Ecclesiastical Insurance Office plc (“EIO”), which is part of the BG. The BG is a specialist financial services group providing insurance, broking and advisory and investment products and services, and is predominantly UK-based with overseas operations in Canada, Australia and Ireland.

Policies

The Trust does not have a supply chain itself but uses the services of its main trading subsidiary, EIO, under the terms of its Shared Services Agreement. The BG’s UK supply chain is managed centrally by a team of procurement specialists within its Finance and Claims departments, who are required to adhere to its Procurement Policy and Outsourcing Policy. All employees are required to adhere to the BG’s Whistleblowing Policy and the Trust also has its own Whistleblowing Policy in place for its employees. The BG and the Trust provide a safe environment and culture in which concerns can be raised and responded to responsibly. Anyone who raises a concern can expect to be treated with understanding and respect and not to suffer any form of disadvantage. Supply chain relationships for its overseas businesses are managed locally.

Due Diligence, Risk Assessments, Key Performance Indicators and Training

The Trust expects its own business activities and those of its subsidiaries to be undertaken in accordance with regulatory requirements and best practice, including taking a responsible and ethical approach to combating slavery and human trafficking in its business and its supply chains. The Board of Trustees, and its Audit and Risk Committee, ensure that it has appropriate oversight of its trading subsidiaries. As the Trust uses the services of EIO, details in relation to due diligence processes, risk assessment and management, key performance indicators to measure effectiveness of steps being taken and training on modern slavery and trafficking can be found in EIO’s Modern Slavery Statement here.
